

South Carolina Chapter of the American College of Healthcare Executives Statement on Diversity

As the professional membership society for healthcare leaders, the American College of Healthcare Executives encourages diversity within healthcare leadership, and it believes in the fair and equitable treatment of all people. Diversity, equity and inclusion are ethical and business imperatives that are a core part of ACHE's values. ACHE believes that diversity in its leaders, members and staff serves as a catalyst for a stronger workforce, improved decision-making and outcomes, and a competitive advantage. In addition, ACHE fosters an inclusive and equitable culture that recognizes the contributions and supports the advancement of all, regardless of race, ethnicity, national origin, gender, religion, age, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity or disability. An inclusive and belonging-forward environment can enhance the safety and quality of healthcare, improve relations between healthcare organizations and the community, and positively affect the health status of society. These priorities are reflected in ACHE's strategies, structure and initiatives.
